Once you get to the bottom of it, you'll be designing eye-catching wallpapers in no time. For this tutorial we will use Canva, an online service that allows you to create graphics for free. There are professional features, but you can create your own wallpapers without paying without hitting any major restrictions. To get started, visit Canva and then sign up. Click maybe later in the upper right corner of the next tab to skip Canva Pro registration. Next, you will be asked to start your first proposal. Enter the wallpaper and you will be able to select the wallpaper or wallpaper of your phone. Choose an option here. Can return to this page later. Now it's time to deal with the Canva user interface. Blank space on the screen is an area you can use to create your own wallpaper. It's your blank canvas. You can use the tools on the left to add elements, photos and text to bring your wallpaper to life. If you want something simple, you can choose from the template in the template section. You could even look for specific words and topics. Let's just say you want a quiet scene. You could enter nature and the relevant results would appear. With any template you add, you can click on the elements and change them. For example, click text to change the font, color, or what's written. You can move elements by clicking and dragging them. Or, click and drag the border to resize. Alternatively, you can click and drag the rotation icon to rotate the element. Whether you choose a template or start from scratch, you'll want to add custom elements as well. Pay for the user interface on the left side of the screen. From top to bottom we have photos, elements, text, videos, backgrounds, images and folders. Most people may be interested in uploading their own images and content, so click the upload option. Here you can drag files from your computer. When you upload files, thumbnails of each file appear in the upload bar. You can then click and drag these thumbnails into a blank canvas. After you add dimensions, tap and drag to edit them. Keep in mind that the default resolutions for wallpapers are 1920x1080 for desktops and 1080x1920 for smartphones, so you may want to choose photos that match those resolutions. If you need wallpaper at a different resolution, just click the Resize button at the top, and then click the custom dimensions. Type the dimensions you want, and then click Resize or Copy and Resize. To find wallpaper templates again, just search for the wallpaper in the search box. After that, it's time to add more details to the wallpaper. To add shapes, lines, or other graphics, start with the Elements tab. You can browse each category or use the search bar to find specific elements. Click one of the elements to add it to your picture. When adding elements and photos, pay attention to the bar above. You can use it to delete, move, add transparency, duplicate, or lock elements to a position. As you add more elements, pay attention to the pink lines. They are used to help you line each element up with each other. Once the element is sorted, it will lock slightly in place to help you get everything in the right place. Text is another tool you'll want to master. You can add text as a title, subheading, or text text, or choose font combinations. In a font combination, you're essentially adding a font template that matches the design displayed in thumbnails. There are dozens of font templates so you can get really fancy with minimal effort. When you add you can use the tools at the top to edit the font, font color, and size. If you can't find a font template that you like, you can still do it manually with headings, headings, and body text options. Using the text tools at the top of the page, you can pretty easily make nice suggestions for your wallpaper. When the design is complete, it's time to download it and add it to your device. Click the Download button in the upper-right corner, and then click download again from the drop-down menu. If you're running Windows, you can right-click the downloaded file and click set as desktop background. On your Mac, you can right-click a photo in the Photos app, click Share, and then click Set Picture on your desktop. For Android and iOS, you must first transfer the file to your smartphone and then set it as a desktop background or lock screen in the settings menu. If you want to make edits at any time, Canva automatically saves your suggestions so you can go back and make adjustments and then download them again. Again.
